I told you that someday I would leave you and that day has come. I ask that you do not allow my parting to grieve you. I have traveled to a city where peace and love abide. This bright eternal city is free from shame and pity. My trials are gone forever and tears will find me never.

Now my time is up so don't cry; I am only asleep, I did not die. I have gone to a place of peaceful rest, I know it hurts, but it's for the best. The roll was being called and I heard my name, someday you too, will hear the same. Remember when we were happy and gay? My spirit still lives, I'll be with you everyday, I have met the Master and my soul is happy.
