My next teacher was John E. [unclear] late 1905-1906. Although his ways would not be in accord with the Supreme Court of to-day. She never started a school day without repeating the Lord's prayer. She had no singing or programs as I recall that year. On the last day of school a friend of his stopped by with his phonograph and played records much to the delight of all the pupils.

Nellie Brown and Nella Stagnor [unclear] were my next teachers. Not much stands out of interest in those years.

Bertha Drake was my next teacher. I will always remember an Easter week end that she invited me to spend in her home. For what child can forget anything as special as being a guest in their teachers' homes.
